Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

Over Colfax way me note a considerable lament, reflected in the weekly Record there, because the State Highway Commission has built a new bit of road that by-passes the town. We know, of course, that the commission has adopted that as a general policy. Towns thus by-passed, can do one of two things. They can make themselves so attractive that motorists will wish to turn off the through route and linger there for a little while, or they can gradually move out to the highway.

We know of one town that is gradually moving out to the highway. It is down in the valley, has a population of around 8,000. The highway runs through its outskirts, just inside the city limits. Stores, refreshment stands, beer parlors, etc., now fairly line the highway on both sides for several blocks. The old part of town in the midst of a very rich agricultural area, is not growing much, but along the highway real estate is advancing in price, and building is active.

We doubt if moving the town to the highway is the best solution. We would prefer to see the town, that is the business men of the town, study its natural advantages and make it gradually so attractive that a large percentage of the procession of motorists on the highway would just naturally wish to stop there, to have a meal at, say, a restaurant, known far and wide for its good cookery and pleasant environment for eating, to spend a night, says, at a tavern famous for its chef and also for its hospitable management and the real comfort of its accomodations, to pause to view historic homes, or buildings that have been preserved with good care and good taste through the years, or to go to some garage for auto repairs that travelers have everywhere recommended for its integrity and the skill of its mechanics. The city that has been by-passed may also make its residence sections so attractive, its lawns and gardens so colorful and restful, its streets so pleasant and shaded in the summer time, that tired auto travelers will turn off the main highway for a little while to taste the quiet joys of tranquility and beauty.

We think this is a better way, because, if the state highway commission has adopted the policy of by-passing small towns, as we think it has, there is nothing to prevent its by-passing a town in ten or twenty years, a second time, after it has moved out to the first by-pass. Because the bald truth is that a great many motorists, probably the majority, are on their way. They dislike being slowed up in a small town. In the case of Colfax, the rail traffic there was another reason for by-passing. Often the train stopped across the highway and autos waited until it moved, sometimes five or ten minutes. Now a viaduct has been built across the tracks and drivers on their way to Tahoe and beyond are not slowed a second, much less stopped for several minutes.

One doesn't have to be a prophet to forecast the day when both Grass Valley and Nevada City will be by-passed by the Tahoe-Ukiah highway. Motor tourists bound from the Redwood highway or the two great valley thoroughfares, to the Sierras, who travel the Tahoe-Ukiah road, will one day whirl by these two cities hardly knowing they are here. But both cities have advantages which they should be able to put to practical use in diverting a considerable percentage of the traffic through their streets and by-ways. There are, first, their historical associations, buildings and monuments ,second, their importance as being in the richest gold mining area in California. This importance is bound to increase with the completion of the great debris dam at the Yuba Narrows. And after these two comes the fact that the two towns sit in the midst of a great sports and recreational area. It is regrettably true that facilities for enjoying the hunting, fishing, the mountain climbing, lake boating, horseback trails and even the much publicized winter sports, have not been developed anything like commensurately to the opportunities offered.

It would be a matter of good business sense, before this by-pass road is built, for both cities to unite, under their chambers of commerce or a joint chamber, in a campaign to exploit these unusually fine recreational resources. We maintain in Nevada City an excellent chamber of commerce, but the support accorded it is only a skeleton support. Enthusiasm, a considerable amount of money, and a sturdy determination to do those things needed to insure prosperity now and in the future, must be had to give it a real flesh and blood effectiveness.

P. T. A. TO BATTLE GIANT HOAX OF HAM AND EGGS

Ham and Eggs, so-called, will be opposed by the California Congress of Parents and Teachers. A resolution to this effect was adopted by the board of managers in session at Stanford University July 5 and 6. The action of the board upholds the resolution which was unanimously adopted by the accredited delegates in convention at Santa Barbara, May 18.

The president, Mrs. James K. Lytle, by authority of the board, appointed a committee to prepare the statements for the information of the 240,000 members, explaining the position of the organization with regard to the California State Retirement Life Payment Act, and the reasons therefor.

The resolution adopted by the board of managers follows:

RESOLVED THAT: 1. The California Congress of Parents and Teachers vigorously oppose the California State Retirement Life Payments Act as, in our opinion, it threatens to destroy the financial structure of the state and jeopardize our schools and other public institutions; and that

2. The full resources of the organization be enlisted to combat the act and to cooperate with such other groups as are also interested in defeating it.

The resolution adopted by more than 2000 accredited delegates at convention, and upon which the board based its latest action, states: "In accordance with a long established policy that every child shall have free educational opportunities from kindergarten through college that will fit him to work ,play, and live harmoniously with others, the California Congress of Parents and Teachers opposes the increase or establishment of any service of government which will jeopardize or curtail funds for such free public education".

The committee appointed to prepare the statements concerning the Congress' stand on the 30-Thursday plan consists of seven members and an editor. Mrs. A. M. Drury of Porterville, chairman of the state committee on legislation, is chairman.

HYDRAULIC ASSN. TO AID MINING DEFENDANTS

Ways and means of overcoming the action taken by the Carmichael and Fair Oaks sections of Sacramento county in obtaining warrants for the arrest of those who operate the Raw Hide quartz mine and Lost Camp placer mine, were discussed Saturday by the California Hydraulic Mining association at its meeting in this city. Tailings from the two properties dump into the American river.

The complaints charge violations of Section 374 of the Penal Code of California, in that the companies are charged with dumping their tailings into the American river from which the North Fork Ditch company takes its waters for sale for domestic purposes. The cases were brought in the justice court of Sutter Township in Sutter county, where a very strong prejudice against all kinds of mining exists.

Attorneys Bog Houston and Chauncey Dunn of Sacramento who represent the defendant companies were present and discussed the situation at length. They said the two companies could come into court and plead guilty but that such a course would be disastrous to the miners' cause.

Houston asked that the California Hydraulic Miners Association cooperate in the defense of the two companies and that engineers and attorneys from the association meet with Houston and Dunn and the defendants at Houston's offices in Sacramento on Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock and discuss the situation at length.

Chairman George Hallock, who presided at the meeting, appointed Ross F. Taylor of Downieville, W. E. Wilson of Middle Fork and Cal Hafey of Colfax as engineers to attend this meeting and outline a campaign against the action of the North Fork Ditch Co. As soon as the arrests of the men had been made C. E. Clark, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee stated that immediate action had been taken in regard to the matter and that the CHMA would cooperate to the fullest extent.

Col. Hannon and Major Johnston of the California Debris Commission were present and threw light on various phases of the situation.

H. F. Sofge, secretary of the Nevada City Chamber of Commerce, stated that organization was making a drive for members for the CHMA and A. H. Turner of Colfax detailed the steps being taken by the membership committee in the drive for new members.

FOREST SMOKER IS FINED TEN DOLLARS

Thomas Martin arrested by State Ranger William F. Sharpe on a charge of smoking in a forest area was fined $10. The alternative was five days in jail. Martin is from the camp at Scotts Flat. He was arrested yesterday by the state warden. Sharpe took Martin back to the camp and he raised the funds to pay his fine.

MASS MEETING OF WPA WORKERS IN G. V. TONIGHT

WPA relief workers will hold a mass meeting in Grass Valley Memorial park this evening to pass resolutions in protest to the increased hours imposed by Congress to earn the same money that they formerly earned.

While there have been nation-wide repercussions in relief and labor circles regarding the reduction in pay, reports today indicate that all but a very small percentage of those on relief have returned to their employment rather than be cut off the WPA rolls.

NOR. FORK YUBA FIRE STOPPED

The forest fire which started Friday on the east fork of the Yuba North Fork near Downieville is well under control this morning. Twelve local men were brought out this forenoon. Five or six remained to mop up. The fire burned over 100 acres of brush land between the Lavezzola and Butcher ranches. It spread rapidly due to the dry season but it also hit natural barriers which slowed it down.

E. L. Baxter, in charge of fire control, had 90 men on the fire lines. Fourteen CCC boys were brought from Sierraville under Leslie Land. Twenty fire fighters came from Quincy and arrived on the Gold Lake side of the fire.

E. L. Stone, local fire dispatcher, stated weather forecasts for the next few days call for thunder storms over the moutains, mostly on the eastern side.

U. S. SENATE BODY CALLS DONNELLY AS WITNESS

Olney Donnelly, president of the Mine Workers Protective league is enroute by train to Washington, D. C. where, on Wednesday, he has been summoned to appear before the Senate Labor and Education committee, regarding proposed amendments to the Wagner act, their effect, and the activities of the National Labor Relations board in this county.

Donnelly and others who lead independent labor unions have been requested to testify concerning treatment accorded them by labor board in various local labor crises, including the one in Nevada county a year ago.

STATE MAKING NEW RECORD FOR MOTOR TOURISTS

Displaying license plates of other states throughout the nation, cars of visiting motorists in California give increasing evidence that the record motor tourist travel predicted for the state this year is now strongly under way. This evidence of a heavy influx of visiting motorists, apparent to the most casual observer, is backed by other specific indications, according to a California State Automobile Association report today.

There has been a sharp increase in the number of members of affiliated AAA clubs applying for travel information at association offices, the report said. Out of state cars in the parking area at the exposition have amounted to almost one third of the total on some days. Yosemite Valley reports double the normal number of cars from other states, and similar reports come from other recreational areas.

CHALLENGE ACCEPTED

The challenge of the Nevada City firemen soft ball team has been accepted by the Antler team and a game will be played in Pioneers park Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Marvin Haddy is president of the Antler team. Miles Coughlin is expected to lead the firemen.

By H. I. PHILLIPS

(Reprinted from the New York Sun)

(Henry Ford started the Ford Motor Co. 26 years ago with $2,800."—News item.)

THEN

A man demonstrates a horseless carriage and asks financial backing. He says his name is Henry Ford.

Nobody knows him.

He says he needs about $2,800.

He gets it.

The business starts.

TODAY

A man demonstrates a horseless carriage and asks financial backing. He says his name is Ford.

Nobody even asks his first name after he mentions $2,800.

He goes to some wealthy men but they tell him this is no time to take chances.

He goes to a banker. The banker says a horseless carriage might go all right, but the bank is putting all its money into government bonds.

He goes to a close friend, who expresses the belief a horseless carriage might have a future, but that on account of the economic setup, the unbalanced budget, the inflation scare, etc., it is no time to launch a new project.

He goes to another close friend, who is quite delighted with the horseless buggy, but who "isn't putting any money into anything now on account of the European situation."

He goes to a politician. The politician says a horseless carriage looks okay on paper and might be profitable through replacing the horse and buggy; but that to replace the horse and buggy would be to throw blacksmiths, hack drivers, feed store workers, harnessmakers, etc., out of work.

He finally locates a couple of capitalists who have imagination enough to see a future for the automobile but he drives them out by predicting that "they will make millions." The thought of what they will pay in taxes scares them so much they order Mr. Ford to forget all about it.

He decided to try Wall Street.

The SEC demands a demonstration. The car works perfectly, but the commission cautions Mr. Ford against undue optimism, overstatement or the use of superlatives. It holds up everything while it makes a six-month inquiry to see if his right name is Henry Ford.

A broker agrees to float stock.

The flotation is rendered a little difficult by SEC rules that lines in the advertisements such as "may ultimately become popular as the horse and surry" and "likely some day to take its place as a pleasure vehicle" be deleted in the interests of honesy.

Ford quits Wall Street, finally gets $2,800 from a group of friends—Heaven knows how—and starts a small shop.

Labor delegates warn him that for every man he hires to make an auto he must hire at least one livery stable worker.

There are a series of strikes. They are referred to the NLRB. The NLRB investigates for a year and a half and files a report charging that a horseless carriage industry is unfair to whip makers.

Mr. Ford appeals to Washington and explains, rather pathetically, "all I am trying to do is to make some horseless carriages."

There are frenzied speeches in the Senate and House in denunciation of the new invention by orators who speak as "a friend of that noble animal, the horse."

The President names a commission "To Inquire Into the Aspects of the Horseless Carriage With a View to Possible Effects on the Economic and Social System.

The committee announces it will have a report ready in three years .

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder if you can recall
The story once considered "tall,"
About a horse that tried to thrive
Without his rations while alive;
Of course it was a splendid scheme—
A gorgeous economic dream,
But soon reduced to bone and hide,
The noble creature up and died.

I wonder if Japan's food dictator, Dr. Saiki, considered that ancient experiment when he began formulating dietary rules for the citizens of his beloved country.

An article appearing in the July issue of the Readers' Digest, contained much startling information. Under the scientific direction of Dr. Saiki, food conservation seems to have reached its ultimate limit of effectiveness. The strange variety of food stuffs produced by Japanese chemists, is a revelation to those of us who very modestly eat to live.

The Japanese are ready if emergency demands, to live upon five cent's worth of food per day; and to eat—almost anything. Roots, herbs, leaves and stalks of various plants are of course utilized—that is not so bad, but Dr. Saiki is a clever concoctor of cultinary receipes; all living things are grist for his mill—he considers cats, dogs and rodents extremely palatable—and no doubt they are. Grass hoppers are a luxury and water snakes, toads, snails, etc. Well, here is an experience as told by one who knows.

Mr. Latha, author of these remarkable accounts, called upon Dr. Saiki one day and found that eminent food conserver eating grass hoppers which had been dipped in soybean sauce and fried. When invited to sample these choice tid-bits, the caller gurgled a "thank you" and gingerly gulped one down. "Not bad," was the verdict, and of course we all remember how once upon a time a great prophet subsisted quite comfortably upon a diet of locust and wild honey—perhaps we occidentals are too finicky about the selection and preparation of our daily rations.

We have often been told by scientists who ought to know, that we are what we eat; if that is true, the food situation in Japan opens up a fearsome field of speculation. There was also a certain wise man who said. "an army fights on its —tummy." If that also is a fact, will the Japanese army hop, jump or slither? Imagination staggers.

We may however consider that when we are afflicted with another grass hopper plague we can just scoop the insects up and ship them all across the sea to Dr. Saiki.

I wonder what the author of an article recently published in a well known magazine, meant by references to "our upper classes." I wish he had been more explicit—named the ingredients used in concocting American upper crust, and just how they are smoothly combined. Additional information upon this subject might provide us with an answer to the age old question, "why should the spirit of mortal be proud?"

Uncle Silas says: "I hope Joe Lewis won't get to thinking of his fistic opponents as "poor white trash."

CHILLS CHASE LAUGHS IN "THE GORILLA" MOVIE

When Ralph Spence's play, "The Gorilla," opened on Broadway the experience was completely unique to all theatre-goers. So successfully did the story combine hair-raising chills with sidesplitting laughs that audiences never knew what to expect, which of course made the fun-and-fright feast even more enjoyable.

There's even more real spinechilling fright in 20th Century-Fox's new screen version of the famous play opening Thursday night at the Nevada Theatre, but then there's even more rolling in the aisles laughter—just look who are the detectives: the Ritz Brothers!

The roles are highly unusual for the wacky trio and a glance at the Rian James-Sid Silvers screen play convinced Charlotte, Anette and Ruth Ritz (Mrs. Harry, Mrs. Al and Mrs. Jimmy respectively) that the boys would have to be in top physical condition to survive the exacting requirements of the story.

Listed among the stunts the worrisome wives found lined up for their husbands in the course of the story action were: a half dozen hand-to-hand tussles with the gorrilla; several chases through a heavy rainstorm; a number of falls through trapdoors; an occasional flyer through French doors, which happen to be closed at the time, and sundry similar antics.

MORE RESTRICTIONS FOR YOUNG DRIVERS

Additional restrictions upon the youthful drivers are imposed by changes in the driver's license law enacted by the legislature and effective in September, reports the California State Automobile association.

The Department of Motor Vehicles is given wide authority to impose such restrictions as may be deemed necessary on "instruction permits," which are issued to persons first learning to drive. The law is also tightened with respect to licenses issued to minors between 14 and 16 years of age.

A practical effect of the new law is to establish 16 years as minimum age for issuance of a driver's license. Minors between 14 and 16 will be licensed only if it can be shown that a real necessity exists for a minor in that age group to drive.

H. F. Sofge and party spent Sunday in the Sutter Basin fishing. They brought home a basket of cat fish.

ROMANTIC LOVE NEEDS TEACHING SAYS DOCTOR

"Romantic love is as firmly established in the mores as it is in the movies." declares Dr. Oliver Butterfield in his new book, The Love Problems of Adolescence, which was brought out this week by the Bureau of Publications, Teachers College, Columbia University. "American youth is troubled by a romantic concept of love which seems to imply that those who fall in love have some moral obligation to marry each other. Many apparently fail to realize that marriage requires something more for its success than romantic attraction".

Dr. Butterfield, who is a consultant with the Family Guidance Service in New York City, and the author of two books on marriage, has spent over a year making a study of adolescents. Basing his conclusions on the results of unsigned reports, discussion forums, and interviews with over a thousand young people between the ages of 13 and 25, he found that the problems which appeared with the most frequency had to do with questions of the "significance of boy and girl affection" and "how to win and hold the regard of persons of the opposite sex."

"Lack of parental and family understanding" Dr. Butterfield says, "appears to be a basic factor in many cases of adolescent maladjustment. It would not be fair to indict our entire modern system of family and public education as being wholly lacking in any plan to teach emotional self-control, but relatively speaking this seems to be one of the striking deficiencies of your present situation."

"Nothing can be more revealing than the questions turned in by these boys and girls," says Dr. Butterfield "and one is forced to conclude that many of their perplexities are little more than the natural results of ignorance concerning certain basic facts in human biology. In one group 48 per cent of the ninety five high school boys and girls reported that their parents had neither spoken with them personally, lent them books or pamphlets, nor sent them to any sort of a qualified counselor to learn about matters of sex and reproduction."

"Youth must have security," Dr. Butterfield says in conclusion, "and he is compelled to find it either in his crowd through conformity or in the approval of his elders. If you would help the adolescent you must sense his perplexity and supply him with education, with understanding and affection."

Jeep Proves Popular at Sports Show

The future generals reported a very entertaining trip.

MISCREANT WOUNDS DEER CREEK MALLARDS

Indignation has been expressed over the wounding, and killing of the wild ducks that live in Deer Creek near the Fred Sauvee home. The first or mother bird came to the Sauvee yard when he kept chickens. Mr. Sauvee secured some eggs and she hatched about a half a dozen ducklings last year. Several accidents happened to the older ones until there was only one drake left.

It is claimed children are shooting at the birds and have crippled the mother and killed the oldest drake. The mother hatched eleven ducklings this spring and one of them has been killed. She has hatched six more in recent weeks. The birds are wild and there is a law against killing them out of season.

Alfred Haddy received a letter from his wife this week stating she was visiting in Milwaukee and would spend the Fourth of July in the copper country of Michigan.

TWO RECKLESS DRIVERS TRIED

Richard Hammer convicted of reckless driving, was sentenced by City Judge Miles Coughlin this morning to 60 days in jail. Suspension of the jail term was offered provided he paid for the repairs on the car he hit while driving recklessly.

Dallas Hammer, brother, arrested on the charges of reckless driving and refusing to stop at the scene of the accident, was fined $50 on the first count. On the second he was fined $50 with the alternative of 100 days in jail. His license was suspended for 30 days.

SAFETY PROGRAM IS STRESSED BY MINE ENGINEER

The necessity of the mine management taking an active part in the promotion of safety is stressed in a paper on "Coordination of Safety and Employment," by G. W. Grove, mining engineer, recenty published by the Bureau of Mines, Department of the Interior. The paper also emphasizes the responsibility of the mine management in providing basically safe working conditions, a definite safety program, and adequate and workable safety rules.

The cooperation of employees in the promotion of safety is also emphasized. Attention is invited to the need for more careful examination as to the capabilities, fitness—physical and otherwise — of new employees, the importance of adequate and workable safety rules, and instruction of employees regarding such rules. Particular emphasis is placed on the necessity of training and educating employees by officials, or by means of suitable practical safety courses, during the early stages of employment and when changing employees from one type of work to another.

Ideas for continued safety education of employees by means of safety meetings, safety campaigns, first-aid training, and bulletin boards are also discussed. Methods for maintaining interest in safety and for obtaining the cooperation of officials and employees by the awarding of prizes and the use of bonus systems are described in the paper.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross F Taylor and daughter, Miss Marjorie Taylor, of Downieville were Nevada City visitors during the past week end.
